From Ordinary Differential equations to Neural Networks, solving mechanics problems in a new way

Introduction.

The aim of this project is to study an oscillation problem using different methods for solving ordinary differential equations. We will focus on traditional methods as well as on solving similar equations neural networks.

a: More text to come